DIOCESAN BOUNDARIES
The Diocese of Cleveland was established April 23, 1847. It comprises, since July 22, 1943, eight counties in the north-central part of Ohio – Ashland, Cuyahoga, Geauga, Lake, Lorain, Medina, Summit and Wayne counties. Square miles: 3,414.

This area of Ohio had a Catholic population of 604,089 in 2022 or about 22% of the total population, which in the 2022 U.S. Census estimate was reported to be 2,767,754.

THE DISTRICT STRUCTURE
The District Structure provides a consistent, similar structure throughout the diocese for gathering people in pastoral administration and ministry within parishes. This structure seeks the diversity of input that reflects the thinking and feeling of district members. It is intended to support people in carrying forth the common mission of the Church within their parishes, communities, the diocese and the world.

The Catholic Diocese of Cleveland Archives serves as the final repository for the permanent records of diocesan offices and closed parishes, maintaining a historical record of the ministry of the Church, both through business transactions and pastoral ministry, in Northeast Ohio.

All sacramental record books from closed parishes, institutions such as orphanages and hospitals, and transcripts from diocesan elementary and high schools are maintained by the Archives. Additionally, the Archives maintains a baptismal locator database to be used as a resource to help people find where their sacramental records are kept.

Archives staff are ready and happy to assist with any questions you have about sacramental records or diocesan history/research. You can find more information by going to our website, http://www.dioceseofcleveland.org/archives. Additionally, you can find contact information and areas of expertise for Archives staff below:
